■ Media Accreditation

At the 2014 Incheon Asian Games, there are several categories of accreditation, depending on the role of the participants. By basic rule, all media persons wishing to apply for media accreditation at the Games must be approved by the National Olympic Committee of the country of origin of their affiliated media company. Media companies from countries outside of Asia and international news agencies must contact the team at IAGOC in charge of media accreditation, Media Support Team (Email: mediad@incheon2014ag.org, Tel: +82-32-458-2525).

The potential applicants for media accreditation must contact their National Olympic Committee for the required information for media accreditation application. This information includes the log-in ID and password that are required for online application of media accreditation. With the log-in ID and password, each applicant must go to the Media Accreditation online application page – <https://acr.incheon2014ag.org/jsp/aco/login/login.jsp> and use the ID and password to log in and complete the application form.

General information concerning media accreditation can be found at <http://www.incheon2014ag.org/en/Media/accreditation>, where overview information, key dates, and contact person details can be found, and also Media Accreditation Guide (.pdf file) can be downloaded.

Media companies from countries outside of Asia and international news agencies must contact the team at IAGOC in charge of media accreditation, Media Support Team, for the necessary log-in ID and password.

All applications for media accreditation must go through the final approval process by the Olympic Council of Asia.

For any other inquiries concerning media accreditation, please contact IAGOC's Media Support Team (Email: mediad@incheon2014ag.org, Tel: +82-32-458-2525).

■ Media Accommodation

There will be a Media Village and several Media Hotels and Motels for the accommodation of media persons. Accommodation facilities reserved for the media persons can be utilized by only those persons who are accredited as media. Persons without media accreditation must find other hotels and accommodations. General information about the media accommodation, including room types, rates, service facilities, and reservation, is found on <http://www.incheon2014ag.org/en/Media/accomodation>.

- Media Village

The Media Village is located in Guwol-dong, in central Incheon, as a part of the 2014 Asian Games Athletes' and Media Village complex. There will be 2,900 rooms at the Media Village, 2,000 rooms for broadcasters and 900 rooms for press journalists. The Media Village is 40 minutes away from the Incheon International Airport and 20 minutes away from the Asian Games Main Media Center by car. The rate for one person per room per night will be 80,000~100,000 Korean Won (US$80~100) depending on the type of room. The Media Village will be operated from September 9 until October 6, 2014. The regular reservation period for the Media Village ends on March 31, with late reservation until April 30.

- Media Hotels

There are 4 hotels as of now among 4-Star and 5-Star hotels in Incheon already designated as Media Hotels for 2014 Asian Games.
